We Aren't "Jumping On" Anybody

Pine Cone readers have both praised and criticized (according to the direction in which their sympathies lay) this newspaper for "Jumping on the Police Department" in the Horne case.

We wish to point out that at no time have we made any editorial comment on the affair. We could not have done so if we had wished, as both sides of the story were not available until last Friday evening when statements of the police and witnesses were presented to the city council.

If previously, Mrs. Horne's story had more prominence in this paper than that of the police officers involved it was for the same reason that we withheld an expression of opinion: adequate police statements were not available.

Now the affair has been taken into court, where it belongs. Emotionalism has reached such a pitch in Carmel that an objective evaluation of the evidence would be well nigh impossible without the checks and balances of court procedure. The trial can result in nothing but good to the community. If Jelich's actions were within the line of duty, he will be benefited by having his name cleared. If he is guilty, the town which employs him has the right to know.

This writer has a healthy respect for the processes of the law as exemplified by the courts which for over a century in this country have done a workmanlike job of dispensing justice.

The Pine Cone Takes on a Week

Our desk almanac informs us that March 27-April 2 is Packaging Week. A careful canvassing of our usual sources of information has proved unproductive and, unfortunately, the name is not self explanatory like apple week where almost everybody knows right off.

Music Society Presents Pinza Sunday Afternoon

The concert at the Sunset school auditorium on Sunday afternoon, March 26th at 2:15 o'clock will focus the local musical spotlight on the distinguished opera star who is unquestionably the Metropolitan's principal male asset of the moment by both artistic and box-office standards. For, in his eighteenth season at the Metropolitan Ezio Pinza is not only established as the pre-eminent basso of his times, but enjoys the matinee-idol status usually reserved for tenors alone. In fact the selection of Pinza as star of Moussorgsky's one-man opera "Boris Godounov" for the opening night of the Metropolitan's Diamond Jubilee season chalked up

City Departments May Enter Kites In 13th Annual Kite Festival at Carmel Hi Athletic Field Saturday

Ernest Calley, high chief of the Thirteenth Annual Carmel Kite Festival to be held Saturday afternoon at High School Athletic Field issued a warning yesterday that all kites to be entered in the adult class must be made and flown by the adult entering them except in the case of an officially designated representative of a club, organization or civic body.

"They can't get their youngsters to make their kites for them and then try to slip them into the contest as their own," Calley said.

And in the case of the officially designated representatives of a club, organization or civic body, the kite must be made and flown by an adult.

So far, the following clubs, organizations and civic bodies have indicated they will enter a kite: The Carmel Lions club to be represented by Gene Ricketts who states that he will make the kite himself without any help or advice from Michael; and the Carmel Pine Cone-Cymbal which is being represented by Wilma Cook who made her own kite without any assistance from Sunny so help me.

Other organizations and civic bodies which are tottering on the brink but hadn't quite gone overboard by mid-week are the city council which is trying to prevail upon Street Superintendent Bill Askew to represent them. (The Mayor had previously suggested to Councilman Fred Godwin, who is running for election to the airport board, that it would be eminently proper and fitting for him to fly the kite for the council, but the candidate shyly declined); the high school faculty, represented by Coach Ruddy Rudd. (Superintendent J. W. Getsinger was unable to get a kite made as he had to spend the greater part of the week in Salinas); the police department, represented by Officer

Mrs. Horne in Hospital, May Not Appear for Hearing; Jelich Faces Trial Before Judge Baugh April 4

It may be necessary to ask for a continuance of Mrs. Fred Horne's hearing set for next Wednesday in city court on a traffic charge because she is under treatment at the Peninsula Community Hospital for reaction from shock and may not be able to appear, her attorney Eben Whittlesey said yesterday.

Developments during the week in the Horne-Jelich case which has had the town in an emotional turmoil since March 8 when Mrs. Horne, Monterey, addressed a letter to the city council charging that Carmel Police Officer Edward Jelich dragged her violently from her car in making an arrest for a traffic violation were:

A hastily called special meeting of the city council Friday evening at 5:30 p.m. to hear the reading of Police Commissioner's report of his investigation into Mrs. Horne's complaint. The council members were furnished with copies of the report for further study.

Issuance of a complaint Tuesday by District Attorney Anthony Brazil charging Jelich with battery, to which Jelich pleaded not guilty through his attorney Ralph Marron, Monterey, and asked for a jury trial. The trial is set for April 4 at 10 a.m. in Judge Ray Baugh's justice court in Monterey. District Attorney Anthony Brazil will prosecute.

Issuance of a statement by Mayor P. A. McCreery printed in full elsewhere in this paper in which he complained of the intrusion of county authorities into what he considers a city affair before the city council had time to act. He also expressed the opinion, gathered from a study of Rowtree's report that "I cannot find any grounds on which the complaint is based."

Fixing of Wednesday, 10 a.m. in the city hall as the time and place for Mrs. Horne's hearing before Judge George Ross on the traffic violation charge, to which she has pleaded not guilty; and the possibility, now, of the hearing having to be postponed because of Mrs. Horne's indisposition.

Rowntree's report submitted without comment or recommendation at the special meeting of the city council Friday contained a report by Police Officer Edward Jelich, a report by Police Chief Roy Frates, a report by City Judge George P. Ross, a character testimony for Jelich from several Carmel Special Police, and statements of unnamed witnesses who saw or heard what occurred when the arrest was made.

Jelich states that he had received a report of a drunken driver on the afternoon in question and as he approached San Carlos and Ocean he noticed a woman who "looked to be drunk." As he approached the suspected car and driver, she made a U-turn at 9th and San Carlos and failed to give an arm signal until she completed

Fran Vandervort Writes Home From Anzio Beach Head

Sergeant Francis Vandervort, now serving with an Anti-Tank corps of the U. S. Army on the Anzio beach head in Italy, writes of conditions there to his wife, the former Shirley Schenck, who makes her home in Carmel on Dolores street. Sgt. Vandervort, the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Vandervort of Carmel, landed with our troops in the African invasion of November, 1942, since which he has seen service in Sicily and at Anzio beach head, taking part in six amphibious landings. A brother, Dale, is in the Navy, taking special radio work at College Station, Texas, while another, Logan Vandervort, was wounded in action with the U. S. Navy in the South Pacific and has received his honorable discharge. A third brother, Gene, is a student at Sunset school.

Anzio Beach Head
February 27, 1944

Dear Shirley:

The day has finally come I have been waiting for a long time. The censorship has been lifted somewhat, so I'm able to write a long letter and possibly more interesting. The first thing I'll tell you is that I'm on the Anzio beach head which I imagine you have heard a lot of wild tales about. I have been here from the start. Now that the Krauts know we are here I guess they figured you folks at home may share the secret, too. It has been a hot spot. If you have the right kind of map I think you are able to see about how far we are

Public Reception At Art Gallery Sunday Afternoon

Martin Gambee, whose one-man water color exhibition is now on view at the Carmel Art Association gallery, arrives today from Phoenix, Arizona, to be present at the reception which will take place in his honor next Sunday between 5 and 7 at the gallery and to which all of the Carmel public is cordially invited.

Assisting Mrs. Martin Gambee in the receiving line and at the punch table will be Mesdames John Pasmore, Donald Craig, T. A. Larson, Leon Kotzebue, Lawrence Quinn, Waldo Fish, Robert Peck, Myron Oliver, Martin Baer, Joseph Raney, Patricia Cunningham, Miss Margot Oliver and Maxine Albro.

"Kippy" Stuart's Piang Basis of Radio Broadcast

The narrative of the April 2 broadcast of the University of California's increasingly popular program, Pacific Story, will be based on The Pledge of Piang, the latest of the Piang books written by Mrs. G. W. Stuart of Carmel. The hero has his counterpart in Piang, a Moro chieftan who was a childhood friend of the author.

The broadcast, which goes on the air at 10:30 p.m. over KPO, will be entitled "Mindanao," Piang's Island, and will open with

Ship To Be Named For Our Mission

A 15,600-ton tanker, dedicated to the Carmel Mission will slide down the Marin Ship ways at Sausalito Tuesday afternoon at 4:30, the Pine Cone-Cymbal, was informed by long distance call yesterday.

Mayor P. A. McCreery and Father Michael O'Connell have been invited to attend the launching when Mrs. W. B. Lardner, whose husband and son are both employees of Marin Ship, will christen the new vessel "Mission Carmel," the fifteenth of the Mission Series built by the company and the 39th ship to be launched since ground was broken for the fifteen million dollar ship yard two years ago next Tuesday.

As the launching will take place on Marin Ship's second anniversary, special ceremonies in which officers of the U. S. Maritime service will participate are planned.

Ten additional invitations have been mailed to the Pine Cone-Cymbal with the request that they be given to Carmel citizens who might wish to attend. They may be obtained by calling at the Pine Cone-Cymbal office.

Requiem Mass for One of the Last Mission Indians

Requiem mass was celebrated by Father Michael O'Connell and the choir of the Missionary Catechists at the Mission San Carlos de Borromeo at 9:30 on Tuesday morning for Guillermo Onesimo, whose death occurred at his home on the Roy Meadows Ranch in Carmel Valley on Saturday.

Guillermo Onesimo, aged 36, was a member of the sole remaining Carmel family of full-blooded Indians descended from the first parishioners of Father Junipero Serra, a fact of which Father O'Connell made note in an eloquent and moving sermon, recalling that it was for the welfare of these native Californians that Fr. Serra established the Mission, coming here to teach the rudiments of good living rather than hope of gain. He emphasized the efforts made by Serra to train his charges in trades and hand-crafts and offset the impact upon a peaceful and pastoral folk by the influx of a new and different civilization, and concluded by contrasting the precepts of Serra to much that is materialistic in the world today.

Guillermo Onesimo, his sister, the late Mrs. Mary Ramirez, and his three surviving brothers, Juan, Alessandro and Bartolo, with whom he made his home in Carmel Valley, were the children of Panoche Onesimo, who died a little more than a year ago, at the age of 80. A niece, Margarita Ramirez, makes her home in Monterey, while the three other descendants of Mary Ramirez, Alessandro, Pedro Luis and Vincente, live at present in Watsonville.

FROM A SOLDIER'S LETTERS . . . .

VIII.

Again I can resume my flow of letters to you, and once again write those familiar words, destination safely reached. As you can no doubt guess, the destination was not Hawaii or 'Frisco, but at that it is nice to be back in civilization, even though the natives insist on driving on the wrong side of the street. My ride from the ship to the hospital almost caused a nervous breakdown; I kept thinking the bus was going to run head on into another car. In some manner, they manage to navigate successfully with their odd driving custom. I have not been to town yet, nor will I have a chance to go for some little time; however that is just as well since it will give me time to learn the monetary system used here.

This is an army hospital, but despite that, it has an advantage over the navy hospital at New Hebrides. The food is much better with plenty of fresh eggs, milk, fruit and vegetables, all of which I am enjoying for the first time in a year. I doubt if I will have a chance to look up your friends the M's, as I am not in that particular place. But I can visit the people whose address was given you by their relatives in Carmel.

The weather here is similar to Oregon and makes the desire to see home all the stronger.

While a warm summer sun (the date is December) plays hide and seek with dark grey clouds in the azure sky, I again "take my pen in hand." It is now permissible to tell where I have been, provided I don't mention when, or list the places in the order I was there. The present place cannot be mentioned. So here goes: New Hebrides, New Georgia and Arundel—fought major campaign here; Guadalcanal—major campaign; Oahu and Kauai; Camp Stoneman, Camp Roberts and Monterey. I have also been in the harbors of New Caledonia and Suva, Fiji Islands. This jungle fighting takes something out of a man. The S. W. Pacific islands may be beautiful to see in pictures or read about, but they are hell to live in. I watch with great interest and hope the growing power of the Allied air force, and the continuing success of the mighty Russian army. On these two forces I base my hope for Peace on Earth in 1944.

This year it seems almost satirical to say Merry Christmas, but to everyone, everywhere, I do wish a New Year filled with plenty, crowned with victory and followed by continuing years of peace, harmony and happiness. For you, this is not only a very special wish, but a prayer: Happy New Year—Victorious New Year!

Moving and beer call, yesterday was a rather full day. The moving was just from one ward to another. Beer call is a daily ritual: between 3:30 and 4:30 p.m., the post sells beer, so those of us who indulge make a point of being there at the opening gong. The limit is on the time and not on the amount you can drink.

I spent yesterday, Sunday, enjoying a Red Cross sight-seeing tour. Despite the continuous rain we enjoyed a good look at the harbor (one of the finest in the world), the surrounding country, the museum, then concluded with tea at the Government House.

Received twelve letters, a package and a magazine. (The package was mailed from Carmel May 6, and loafed along for seven months: nevertheless) the "Van Bibbers" were in good shape; I just finished smoking one. Sometime I'll tell you of my last view of Guadalcanal, from ten thousand feet in the air. It was truly a magnificent sight. One can not catch the full beauty of the islands until he has flown over them. I now have seven more of your letters, the last five were addressed to me here, which makes me feel that our communication lines have greatly improved. The last, dated Dec. 27, arrived Jan. 6, good time from Carmel to New Zealand. Yet it arrived same time as another V-mail of December 5. Don't ask me; figure it out for yourself.

The experience father mentions in his letter is most interesting. I am not, as you know, superstitious, but I do admit the possibility of telepathy. I have done some reading on the subject and followed the Duke University radio experiments on telepathy some years ago. (Which, incidentally, "father" thinks are "the bunk.") I can tell you fairly accurately what I was doing at the time you mentioned: you draw your own conclusion. We were engaged in a sharp exchange of rifle and machine gun fire with the enemy. Your son was flat on the ground pouring lead at Mr. Tojo as fast as he could reload his rifle and fire a clip. So you see he was far from safe. However I was thinking of you both. I was thinking of the letter I had sent a few days before saying I was safe, and was

Helen Gahagan Tells of Women's Part in Politics

The part that women must play in the present situation and also, even more important, in the post war settlements in this country for the returned soldiers and for social stabilization was the theme of Miss Helen Gahagan's talk before the Women's Democratic club on Wednesday afternoon at Pine Inn.

Mrs. Ernest Leffingwell, who presided in the absence of the club president, Miss Clara Kellogg, presented the speaker as representing Dr. George Outland, who is now at his post in Washington representing this, the eleventh district in the lower house of Congress and who comes up for the Democratic nomination at the May primaries to succeed himself in office. Miss Gahagan herself is a candidate for Congress to succeed Will Rogers, who had declined to stand for reelection.

The speaker pointed out that women must do more than ever before in the country's history, in the coming political campaign as well as in the running of the government both local and national in the absence of the millions of men now in the service, most of whom in all probability will not have the chance to vote, and who can have no part in the actual process of the various levels of government. To do all this the women need to become familiar with all the conditions and problems and take a stand that will work to the benefit of all the people, including especially the "boys" overseas.

On this last group Miss Gahagan became eloquent, illustrating her points with accounts of the actual hardships, privations, loneliness, and longing of the boys, many of them barely nineteen, who are shedding their blood on 55 battlefronts throughout the world for the homeland that to them has become an ideal to which they hope to return. If the women of this country fail them, if we give way to complaint and irritation over our petty deprivations, if we can't cheerfully give full support to the larger program required to completely back up our men in the fighting zones, we will do these boys an irreparable injury that will continue far into the postwar period.

Miss Gahagan referred to President Roosevelt's program for rehabilitation of the soldiers after the war, as well as the recreation for the boys, especially of the aviation service, who are brought back on furlough after a period of gruelling duty, the strain of which leaves mental and nerve scars that must be recognized and treated with wise consideration. This is work for the women, who, by providing an entirely different set of interesting activities and mental stimulus, can help the boys to get to a healthy normal physical and mental state. This may be a difficult thing unless women can rise above privations which are infinitesimal compared to what the rest of the world are suffering.

As to the post war rehabilitation, it will be easy for lawmakers to slip back into "normalcy" and again fail the returning soldier, as happened after 1918. Unless women demand a constructive program, the country will be in "an awful mess." The boys in the service are watching the actions of Congress. If there is not an orderly demobilization of men in the service and also of labor, if there is a long period of unemployment, if they find no place for themselves on their return, the result will be disastrous. It is necessary for women to see that these things do not happen, that all the sacrifice shall not be fruitless.

On the immediate, practical side, Miss Gahagan pointed out the importance of getting all persons eligible to register; 7500 men from this congressional district alone have gone into the service, and this deficit of votes so far as possible must be made up. Every election is important, but this one is more so than usual because the world crisis makes it most important that men of ability and broad vision be put into the important offices. Most of the work of publicity and carrying out the details of the election must be done by women, chiefly volunteers. Above all, women cannot afford to relax and let matters go.

For Dr. Outland not to be returned to Congress would be a catastrophe, the speaker said. He has won the respect of others as well as of the California delegation, and is recognized in Congress as a clear thinker, honest and fearless, an able member of that body. To make a change now would be a step backward, and would lessen California's influence and prestige in the national body. Our representative is completely in favor of the President's efforts to prevent inflation, which would be a national disaster, and of the program for soldier education and social stabilization.

The members of the Women's Democratic club were urged to work for the largest possible vote for the Roosevelt delegation, in order that the forward-looking program can be carried out. Moreover, the campaign should be carried out on a sane level, presenting issue and facts, not slogans and name-calling, which only cloud the situation and prevent a clear understanding of the problems facing the country. A large group of women and a sprinkling of men heard and enthusiastically approved the speech of this National Democratic Committeewoman.

3rd War for Jurs, He Served in All, At Home Now

In a dispatch to the Pine Cone from the Joshua Hendy Iron Works, at Sunnyvale, Henry Jurs, Carmel citizen and library board member is termed a "production soldier" because of the invaluable service he has rendered by contributing his skill to the vital war work carried on in the plant.

The dispatch reads:

Decorated for gallantry during the Spanish-American war and active in the Bay area as a leading machine-tool adviser during World War I, Jurs is again making his contribution to America's war effort in the turbine division of the local war plant.

He had disposed of his machine-tool business more than 10 years before World War II broke out, finding that the management of his Carmel properties occupied his time. But after Pearl Harbor, realizing that his highly specialized technical knowledge would be valuable, he called on his friends Harry Gunetti, general superintendent at the Hendy plant, and Dave Williams, tool engineer for turbines. He wanted to help, and help he did, analyzing problems of grooving and machining turbine spindles and blade rings, simplifying procedures, working out gauges and special tool bits. A type of small bit he designed actually saved the company more than 1500 pounds of expensive tool steel on the first turbine order alone.

Finally, when tooling was completed, when tooling was com-

Editorials...

what to do with the apple. Nevertheless, we do not like to neglect our responsibility of directing community activity toward worthwhile endeavor so we here urge our readers to get busy next week and package.

And now to the shout that is immediately raised "package what?" we come right back with an answer—several answers. We may be short on information about packaging week but we're long on resourcefulness. Just wait and see. Here are some of the things you can package this week and you don't have to be fussy about two thicknesses of paper, good stout string and complete address with zone number, the usual things that are associated with expert packaging. You can get out the new book you finished reading last week, and several books you enjoyed last month, package them in an old newspaper or a paper bag, tote them down to the Harrison Memorial Library and turn them over to Miss Elizabeth Niles who will do a real job of packaging when she ships them with all the other books your friends and neighbors contribute to the Merchant Marine Library Association in New York. Come to think of it, you will be observing packaging week according to Pine Cone-Cymbal rules here and now formulated if you don't bother about wrapping up the books at all but just take them down any way. Carmel has had a number of book drives but this should be especially appealing because the books are for the Merchant Marine where quite a few of our finest boys are serving.

If you have already donated all your books to other book drives and feel badly about being left out of the big Pine Cone Cymbal celebration of Packaging Week, you can go down to the Bundles shop on Dolores Street, package up some yarn and go home and knit a turtle-neck sweater, helmet or watcher's cap for the boys in the Navy. To our mind this is a very good way of observing Packaging Week because Carmel also has a fine collection of boys in the Navy.

If you can't knit and don't have any books, don't go out and jump off Point Lobos yet. You still can participate in the Big Pine Cone-Cymbal Packaging Week. We here proclaim official ways of observance by: giving some article of furniture, a game or a lamp for the Teen Age Club Room; by bundling up your old newspapers and taking them up to the high school for the paper drive, or if you don't have a car, phone 1434 so the kids can call for them; by making a kite to fly in the Kite Festival and thus assist in preserving a splendid Carmel tradition, or by going down to your lawyer and telling him to put a codicil to your will leaving the Bardarson Memorial Fund $1000.

If you are a sturdy individualist so that none of these activities fire your imagination, name your own act of generosity, do it and you're in—you're a packager and have participated in the Pine Cone-Cymbal's first big annual Packaging Week. —Wilma Cook

MAYOR CRITICIZES D. A.

Mayor P. A. McCreery is piqued at District Attorney Anthony Brazil for issuing a complaint for battery against Carmel Police Officer Edward Jelich, charged by Mrs. Eleanor Horne with using undue violence when he arrested her for a minor traffic violation.

In a statement issued to the Pine Cone Cymbal yesterday, McCreery said:

"Upon completion of my study of the full report submitted by the Police Commissioner regarding the conduct of the Police, I cannot find any grounds on which the complaint is based. The officer may be criticized for being 'over-zealous' but in the conduct of Police work by coming in contact with all types of people, I feel it is much better to have an 'over-zealous' officer instead of one who takes his job indifferently. We are being confronted with abnormal conditions and these conditions must be met to safe-guard the welfare of all decent, law abiding citizens.

"In any event, I feel that the people of Carmel can handle their own affairs and feel the constituted local authorities should have been given an opportunity to make a public decision in this matter. If, after this decision on the part of the City Council, it does not meet with the approval of outside authorities, then we will be glad to invite their action."

FROM A WINDOW IN VAGABOND'S HOUSE. . . By Don Blanding

FOR THE LOVE OF BIRDS

There's one nice thing about getting older: you get enough perspective (some times) to see how wrong you've been about a flock of things and to give fervent thanks that there is still time to change ideas around. For instance, I admit to taking the cartoonist's idea of Ye Serious Bird Lover, and thought of most of them as slightly fuddy-duddy people who disguised themselves as fungi and lurked in the dank shade of a fillaloo tree to watch the love-life of the Sharp-Shinned Bifurcated Nitwit or the Redheaded Rationed Zipper as it zipped from twig to branch.

Now I offer retroactive apologies to all serious bird-lovers, after having watched the auditorium of Sunset school filled with restless small fry who settled with breathless interest or deep-sighing fascination as Dorothy Dean Sheldon sent reel after reel of beautiful colored movies of Western bird life and wildflower life on the screen last Friday morning.

Mrs. Sheldon prefaced the films with a brief fine talk on Memory Moving Pictures which we may take, films of delight which will not crack nor fade with many showings; pictures which are being staged for our mental cameras all the time about us in the forested town. Mrs. Sheldon is not the coo-and-goo school of nature lover. She has plowed into marshes, lurked in cold dawns, suffered the stabs of chollas and ocatillas to get pictures of nesting birds of the desert, shore and mountain. Infinite patience, constant alertness and fine sense of where-and-when go to make such successful pictures as hers.

This is no mere hobby with Dorothy Dean Sheldon. At her own expense, time and effort she goes to schools, the camp hospitals, anywhere where the pictures may bring beauty, instruction or interest to people. Wounded soldiers welcomed her films from many viewpoints, camera enthusiasts, hunters (giving enthusiastic "Wow, what a shot" cries to picture of mallards and quail), or ranchers and farm boys recognizing familiar wild birds of their home fields.

Any child who saw the bird films Friday morning is going to turn a more eager and more intelligent eye on the neighbor birds from now on. He was guest at a feathered "at home," and a fine party it was.

New Hospital Annex Can Be Inspected Sunday, April 5th

Forest Lodge has been leased from Stanford University by the Peninsula Community Hospital and will be opened on April 5 as an annex under the direction of the board and Miss K. Smits, superintendent of the hospital.

The new annex, which will accommodate seventeen patients, will be managed by Miss Nancy Hargraves, who has resided for many years on the Peninsula where she has been engaged as a special nurse. It is to be operated as a convalescent hospital, designed for patients no longer requiring extended nursing but who have nobody at home to care for them.

The need for such an annex has been acutely felt by the Peninsula Community Hospital for some time. It has been operating as a general hospital for ten years, but due to wartime conditions, the increase in population, in the number of critically ill and especially in the local birth rate, lack of room has made it impossible for the hospital to care for all.

Opening ceremonies are planned for Sunday, April 5, at which time the public is invited to inspect the new building.

PATSY PIN-UP GETS A LETTER

PATSY PETERSON

(Third Class Petty Officer, U. S. N.)

Well, am I prancing around on my hind legs these windy March days with my Collie nose up in the air, and my plume of a tail held stiffly out behind as I proudly salute my fellow pooches. I have been vacuum cleaned and had my ruff freshly starched for I'm going to have my picture taken. Oh, I've had my pictures taken before and I guess most every dog in Carmel, worth his bones, has been plunked down in front of a camera, at one time or another, and told to watch the pretty birdies. But, I, not being a bird dog, am much more interested in the beautiful kitties. Dog gone it, that's not what I started to say at all, but I'm all a-flutter and full of pants, and what charming bitch wouldn't be? I am to be pin-up girl for the Marine Devil Dogs! Bark that off if you can, my dears. Imagine me, age ten, going on eleven! Thank goodness, I still retain my girlish figure and I've got all my own teeth, the better to chew a mean Nazi with; my big brown eyes are bright as bright and at certain times I'm very much interested in the boys, especially the Marines who always get there first.

And if any of you beings, human, or otherwise, believe that heroes are made only with two legs, just gather around me while I read to you a letter I received recently from my pal and special beau, Caesar, his whereabouts a military secret, about our four-legged heroes.

"My dearest Patsy," isn't that sweet, my dearest Patsy, "I can now give you the works without some tough Sergeant censoring my canine efforts, so here goes for a good tail wag. In the recent Bougainville campaign, the possibilities of combat dog units were fully realized, and now from Dogs for Defense, Inc., comes the official report on the Marine Devil Dogs in action. When the Marine raiders landed in Bougainville, they had with them a dog platoon of 29 Doberman Pinschers and German Shepherds, the first dogs to see active duty with the Marine Corps. We were an unqualified success, so let us howl. Our Commanding General of the First Marine Amphibious Corps writes in his report: 'Andy, Doberman Pinscher, led 'M' Company all the way to the road block, altering scattered sniper opposition and was the means of preventing the loss of human lives.'

"Caesar, German Shepherd, that's me, was the only means of communication between 'M' Company and Second Battalion C. P. carrying messages, overlays, and captured Jap papers. 'M' Company's telephone lines were out and Caesar, that's me, was again the only means of communication. On that mission I was wounded and had to be carried back to Regimental C. P. on a stretcher, but I was a hero. While I was with 'M' Company I made nine official runs between company and Battalion C. P. and on two of these runs I was under constant fire.

"And now I must tell you about a buddy of mine named Chips, the German Shepherd that made headlines for bravery in cleaning out an enemy pillbox in the Sicilian campaign. He has the honor of being the first dog in the history of this country to receive the Distinguished Service Cross. He had been cited for this award, but the War Department has a tradition that no animal can receive it. However, when the full report of Chips' extraordinary heroism was received, it was decided the regulation must be waived. Major General Lucian Truscott presented this coveted medal to Chips for his courageous

EXHORTATION

*Tire not, my land, my brothers, of the fight,
Nor for an instant falter. Keep thy shield
And broadsword steady that upon the field
Of this ignoble time, thy wakened might
Will conquer. Let no harsh alarm
From false direction swerve thy courage now:
Look not behind—Since thou must forge the plow
To sterner purpose, God keep thee from harm.
And as the Theban bound his friend to him,
Wrist to staunch wrist, and entered the bright sea
Of many spears, so gird about thy breast
The banner, Freedom, and within the din,
Think of how dear thy love hath been to thee:
Tire not, there will be time enough to rest.*

—WILLIS EBERMAN

THE CATALPA TREE

*An idol with many arms,
The catalpa, (stripped of leaf,
Curved pods printing leaf-shadow on the bare hillside)
Wavers through plum-mist.
It is a dragon flute
Outshrieking factory whistles
And scolding horns from a river barge—
Yet I am the only one who hears it.*

*Because the memory of Pacific beaches
Is strong in my hands,
Because the jade-luster of China
Once dazzled my eyes,
I look away from the cornfield,
I feel a great tenderness for the frost-stiffened catalpa,
Exotic,
Unnoticed,
Among native oaks.*

*As if the tree were Kwan-Yin
I offer it the blue bowl of this poem.*

—EVA TRIEM

VOICE OF THE SUBMARINE

*Away from the streets of great pale blue loaches;
down to the sewer shore;
and out of the shallow grease waters of many uses!
We cannot break this humid intercourse with sudden enough and searing enough pain—
Oh, give us our own godly spherule of sea!*

*Yea, the eyeballs ache for those distances.
And the full face yearns outward for laminated gold and silver surface winds.*

REVIEWS

action in single-handedly eliminating a dangerous machine gun nest causing surrender of its crew. He was also awarded the Purple Heart and the Silver Star. I'm very proud to call him friend. Maybe, if we can get furlough together I'll bring him to call.

Then there's Otto, Doberman Pinscher, while working ahead of the point of reconnaissance patrol he altered the position of a machine gun nest and the patrol had time to take cover with no casualties when the machine gun began firing. Otto alerted the position at least one hundred yards away.

"Then there was poor Jack, a German Shepherd, who, even though wounded severely in the back, carried a message back from the Company on the road block that the Japs had struck, and sent stretcher bearers immediately. This was a vital message because the telephone lines had been cut. He also brought help to his wounded handler. I mustn't forget my other two buddies, Rex, a Doberman Pinscher and another Jack, also a Doberman Pinscher. Rex alerted the presence of Japs in the vicinity. At daybreak the Japs attacked but this was not a surprise attack because Rex had already warned of their presence. And Jack too was always right on the job. He kept alerting a tree near 'M' Company C. P. so when it became light enough in the morning Jack's handler pointed out the tree to a B. A. R. man near him. A Jap sniper was shot down out of the tree. This sniper was in a position to do real damage to Company C. P. but due to Jack, the sniper was eliminated.

"There are lots of others but I haven't time for more now as I have to go on duty, but I must tell you what I overheard Lt. General Thomas Holcomb, Marine Corps Commandant say, 'Many more instances could be cited but this should be enough to show that dogs have proven themselves as message carriers, scouts and vital night security; and were constantly employed during the operation of securing and extending the beachhead. They were remarkable and many more are needed.' He also wrote personally to the donors of the dogs cited for outstanding work expressing the appreciation of the Marine Corps. Bow-wow for now and a beef-heart full of liver from your devoted friend, Caesar. P. S. Don't forget the pin-up!"

Now I ask you, friends of dogdom, isn't that a grand doggy letter? I'm proud as proud and all you pooches should really join Dogs for Defense, from one dollar up, according to rank, and as I told you in the Pine Cone-Cymbal before, the money is used to condition dogs for War, and believe me, the K-9 Corps saves many, many human lives! Won't you join NOW? DOGS FOR DEFENSE, Inc., 22 East 60th St., New York, N. Y., or write for particulars to Frank Decker, Professional Handler and Chairman of Monterey County, P. O. Box 1305, Monterey, California.

EL CAMINO REAL

Paul Broadwell Williamson, San Francisco Artist and one of the moving spirits in the founding of the Pent House Gallery that lists a number of Carmel artists in its organization, turned off the paved highway one day and fell under the dreamy spell of a Padre Trail. The result: El Camino Real, a handsome little book illustrated by Russell Wilson, a San Francisco etcher and friends of the author. Simple and direct of speech, Williamson's verse catches the feeling of the leisure and gentleness of a day that has passed.

El Camino Real is a book the visitor will be happy to carry off as a memento of his stay in California, while the native will enjoy the artist-poet's interpretation of a familiar and well loved theme.

Fiesta, Market At Sunset On Pan American Day

By SUSAN CORY

April 14th, Pan America Day, will be celebrated in gala fashion at Sunset school when the students and teachers will stage a gay Fiesta and authentic Pan American market depicting the most colorful aspects of life among our southern neighbors. This will be an entire school project from the seventh grade down to and including the kindergarten, and enthusiasm runs high as each grade vies with the other to make the cleverest and most colorful articles to be sold in the market.

Mrs. Sylvia Jordan is the guiding light of this project and because of the many years she has spent in Mexico her advice is invaluable. Her seventh grade girls are making their own authentic costumes and they will act as vendors selling flowers, cookies, candy etc. There will be many gaily decorated booths where the articles made by the children will be sold: toys, brightly decorated bottles, cocktail napkins, pottery, covered match boxes, gay aprons and coasters being just a few of the attractive articles which may be purchased there. There will also be a Parent Teachers Association food booth where many tempting Spanish dishes, cakes, cookies, etc., will be sold.

The afternoon will start at 1:30 with a play in the auditorium which will reflect the spirit of fiesta. Following this the market will be open in the school yard. Also in the yard will be group dancing, a puppet show and other attractions. Mrs. Ann Uzzell and a group of her students will be in charge of a Pan American tea and floor show to be held in the lunch room while the market is in progress, and Mrs. Jordan will also serve tea in a charming side walk cafe in the corridor outside her room.

The entire affair is to be given for the benefit of the Parent Teachers Association, but will also benefit the entire community as it will offer an opportunity to observe and cultivate the spirit of the good neighbor.

Frankenstein, Abramowitsch to Present Recital

Alfred Frankenstein, music critic, and Bernard Abramowitsch, pianist, will appear in a lecture recital at the high school music room April 23 at 8:15 p.m. under the sponsorship of the Musical Art Club.

They are bringing with them lantern slides of the pictures which inspired Modeste Moussorgsky to compose his tone poems "Pictures at an Exhibit." These will be projected with a commentary by Mr. Frankenstein and Mr. Abramowitsch will interpret the tone poems at the piano.

Van Bibber Writes From England of Red Cross Service

Lachlan Van Bibber, now serving somewhere in England with the U. S. Army Air Force as an airplane dispatcher, writes home to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Noel Van Bibber, "You know, I didn't think much of the Red Cross before, but since I've been over here I wish I'd contributed more freely. They really have taken us under their wing with service clubs, food, entertainment and lodgings."

Lachlan, who came five years ago with his parents to live in Carmel, graduated with the first class from Carmel high school. His brother, Noel C. Van Bibber, is now on active duty on a seaplane tender in the South Pacific. Following the bombing of his vessel he was able to spend three hours in Carmel with his family on the day after Christmas.

Barn Door Reminds Reviewer of Little Theatre of Madrid

By LORNA LINDSLEY

There was a good show at the Barn Door Canteen in the Carmel USO last Saturday evening, a blend of professionals and amateurs working together so smoothly that it was hard sometimes to tell which was which.

Lee Crowe, a gay and casual master of ceremonies, with his assistant, "Tex," Mrs. Ruth Cooke, kept the program going at a lively pace. Peggy and Patsy Canoles opened it with an Irish jig, followed by Gladys Young singing a number of old Irish songs, with Gerita Hanna the accompanist. High professional note on the program, was contributed by George Marion with a monologue from one of his favorite stage roles, after which came a hula dance by Mimi Rookledge and a tap dance by Patsy Canoles. Johnny Cerron from Fort Ord gave a contrasting sketch of a belle from the Nineties and the hepcat of today, and further hilarity was provided by Ruth Marion McElroy in imitations and songs. Mimi Rookledge then did a contortionist dance after which the evening's entertainment wound up with songs by Irving Pessio, whose fine, warm baritone voice was displayed to good advantage in "Ol' Man River" and "I've Got Plenty of Nothing."

As I sat and watched the soldier audience enjoying itself so hugely I remembered how once in besieged Madrid I had sat in a courtyard under the strong sun and watched a group of young Spanish boys and girls put on a show. They were called "Los Guerrilleros del Teatro," the little fighters of the theatre, and ranged from fifteen to nineteen years in age, the boys either too young or incapacitated for fighting. Boys and girls wore khaki shirts and slacks with insignia on their shoulder straps. They drove into the yard in an army truck, unpacked and put up their stage, which was a platform on two big trestles, and arranged their set. There was a wooden table, with two or three chairs and a screen for entrances and exits. Two or three dishes and glasses on the table would mean a cottage and a family at supper. A chair taller than the others and a bit of brocade and silver-plated candlesticks on the table would indicate a palace. When they pushed the furniture behind the screen and set a couple of potted plants on the stage it represented a forest. They would tell you so, in case you mistook it for a garden.

The actors went all out on their costumes which were elaborate and authentic if a little dusty and trampled. The guerrilleros played the old classics with youthful fervor and when the play was over they danced boleros and fandangos till the platform shook. They were a great little crowd, those Spanish children, for that is all they were, and they played right in the front lines, too. They had been under fire many times and some had been wounded.

Madrid was under fire that day I watched, too. We could hear the fascist artillery from across the Manzanares River while we listened to the show.

Well, the war for Democracy is still going on; it's the background to the Barn Door Canteen in Carmel, too.

CHURCH OF THE WAYFARER

"The Gift of Insight" will be the sermon theme of Dr. James E. Crowther next Sunday morning at the Church of the Wayfarer. The topic is suggested by the birthday anniversaries of two blind hymn-writers—the 124th of Fanny Jane Crosby, and the 102nd of the Rev. George Matheson. The former was the author of nearly 6,000 hymns. Dr. Matheson was the Minister of St. Bernard's Church in Edinburgh, Scotland, with 2,000 members. They gained insight through the eyes of their soul. The Church School meets at 1:45; the Church Service is at eleven. Visitors are cordially invited.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

Summer Sports

Well, summer is almost here, and with it comes our summer sports, such as tennis, baseball, track and golf. The tennis team, under Mr. David Marrs, is beginning to shape up rapidly. So far Mrs. Marrs predicts that we will have a pretty good team, and he assures us that if the members come out to practice regularly, we may possibly have another championship team. The boys on the official ladder are Jim Greenan, Milton Thompson, Angelo Lucido, Louis Levinson and Mast Wolfson.

The baseball team under Coach Rudd is also coming along. Some of the new comers to Carmel look like prospective letter-men in this sport, for example, Al Green. So far, there has been little practice but more of a workout, with the balls whizzing from home to short to first to third and so forth. With a little more practice we may hope for a good season from these boys.

Track is another sport which is also getting on rather well. With John McPike formally of Pacific Grove for the shot, Emile Passailaigue for the broad jump, Dick Uzzell and Arnold Pilling for the distant runs, and the other boys on the team, it looks like a fine year for Carmel in the line of summer sports.

Photography

"Watch the Birdie," these were familiar words around Carmel Hi these last two weeks. Mr. George Seidenack, who has been kind enough to take pictures for the year book, has been kept very busy. With the help of Carla Lepori and John Graham the picture taking is practically over and with excellent results. The pictures were taken during class time and after school. Around school you see students all with cameras. They are all thrilled about taking pictures now, too, for the best pictures will be put in the yearbook, under the heading of "Student Life." The boys or girl who takes the best picture will be given a free yearbook. So with this in mind the students at Carmel Hi are praying for more nice weather and more film.

Seniors Win

Last Friday afternoon, after track pictures were taken for the yearbook, Coach Rudd started the interclass track meet rolling. It opened with the 100-yard dash in which there were four contestants entered. The results were, Emile Passailaigue, (senior) first; Bill Wishart, (junior) second; Orval Mead, (junior) third; Sandy Hook, (senior) last.

Next came the 880 half mile) in which Bill Goss (senior) placed first; Bruce King, (sophomore) second, and Bill Russell (junior) third. Next on the list came the shot put in which four contestants took part. They were John McPike, (junior); Roy Parsons, (senior); Emile Passailaigue, (senior); Del Wilson, (senior); John McPike and Emile Passailaigue were in the final qualifications with McPike placing first.

After this the dreaded mile took place in which Jim Heisinger, (junior) placed first, with Arnold Pilling, (senior) second and Doyle Calley, (sophomore) third.

Broad jump: Passailaigue, first; King, second; Appleton, third. Last came the 220 with Bruce King first, Emile Passailaigue second, and Sandy Hook third.

—Emile Passailaigue

Constitution

Last Friday the student body accepted the new revised constitution by a vote of 194 to 16. The student officers have been following the new constitution for some time, but now it is a legal part of our student government organization. Russell Bohlke, Angelo Lucido, Arnold Pilling and Walter Warren were the four hard working students who made the revisions in our old document and brought it up to date.

—Walter Warren

Senior Ball

This Saturday night the seniors are going to give a Cascaron Frolic at the Hi school cafeteria. It is to be a formal affair and promises to be a lot of fun. Now for the details: the reception committee includes, Del Wilson and Bob Holm; the decoration committee is composed of Barbara Bolin, Ann McElroy; Betty Powell and Carla Lepori; the refreshment committee, is headed by Everett May and Bill Munroa, are planning to have the usual "coke" and cookies. The much hated job of clean up has fallen to Arnold Pilling, but no doubt some more seniors will show up to help. (He hopes!)

The chaperones for this gala affair are Coach and Mrs. Rudd, Mrs. Brey, Mrs. Holm and Mr. and Mrs. Getsinger.

—June Quinn

Book Drive

It is a good thing that our book drive was not composed of books we, the students of Carmel Hi, would have liked to give away, for all those service men overseas would receive stacks of chemistry and theorem notebooks, some Primer Curos de Espanols, or Third Year French books. These may be educational, but they're certainly not the type of things the average man would get a kick out of, nor is it the type of thing we turned in.

One hundred and ten of those paper-covered books were given, and one hundred thirty seven bound books. The books showed that most everyone here reads mysteries, from Fu Man Chu to S. S. Van Dine. The total number of books turned in was 244, which is a pretty good total considering there are 265 students now registered.

We Won!

We beat the juniors! The sophomore girls for the first time in their lives beat those uppity junior girls in basketball. The regular full court was used for this battle; and what a battle! Miss Sheldon, the girl's coach, said it was the best game she had ever seen. Not being conceited or anything, but as one of the players speaking, it was a wonderful game. Oh yes! The score: It was 14-12 in the sophomore's favor. We practically raised the roof because of our excitement. Both teams did a swell job but the outstanding forwards were Dorothy Goulart who made 12 points for the sophomores and Claire Warner and Carolyn Cory who made 8 points between them for the juniors. The players for the victors were: Willette Torras, Ann Hodgson, Pamela Dormody, Martha Moller, Penelope Kerr, Dorothy Goulart, Nancy Watson, Barbara Timmins, Susan Walters, Carol Baxter and Alice Morehouse who acted as captain. The players for the juniors were: Lois Petty, Mary Jane Reel, Jo An Thorn, Carolin Cory, Claire Warner Elizabeth Williamson, Florida Botts, Rosalie Roberts, Page Leard, Andrea Del Monte, Ester Van Neil, Alice Williamson, Joan Janda and Dianna Daniells. With this victory to go on, the sophomores hope to beat the juniors again next Friday in the championship game. This one ought to be a whopper!

Opinion of Carmel Hi

As always, before leaving one place for another, you hear all sorts of horrible things about the place you are going to, and Carmel was no exception. I heard that the school was broken down, the teachers mean, the kids snobbish, and the place as a whole was obnoxious.

Of course, most of this was way off, and things aren't nearly so bad as people like to tell you they are. The school is not broken down, the teachers are not mean, (well, they do like to shove out a little!) (LITTLE?) homework, and, too, the kids are anything but snobbish.

Carmel, like all schools, was a little frightening at first. I am the timid type. Seriously, I do dread going to new schools as no matter how friendly people may be, I can't possibly feel at home for the first month or so.

Nevertheless I think the school is swell, I like the unusual building plan and the sound system. The teachers seem more like one of us than any of the teachers I know, and as a whole it is "neat."

Red Cross Bulletins

By HELEN A. FIELD

In this column last week there was a mistake which should be corrected in the minds of readers by a correct statement of the fact of the case. The total amount so generously given by Bundles for America for musical instruments for the permanent orchestra of the Replacement Depot at Fort Ord was $400. This amount will help materially to provide for the purchase of the instruments and thus to provide opportunity for the playing of the music our servicemen find so helpful as they come and go.

How well practiced are you in your First Aid Activities? Could you meet any emergency in which

First Aid is needed with alacrity and confidence or do you need practice in First Aid measures? These are questions each person should answer for himself or herself. They should be answered now before some emergency in which the need may arise has to be faced and acted upon without delay. Soon Carmel Chapter of American Red Cross will provide opportunity for you to bring yourself up to date in First Aid practice. Every person who has taken a First Aid course, and almost everyone has, can take part in refreshing mind and muscle in quick, skillful assistance in case of emergency. Be on the watch for the opportunity.

OVER THE TOP! How quickly Carmel was able to do it! Now the question is how far over the top Carmel will go in giving the needed help to our servicemen and servicewomen overseas and at home.

Spring Is Here

On my to school today,
I saw a robin who had been far away,
I saw a cluster of violets too,
Everything was covered with dew,
I saw a flower and a pretty pink bud
The leaves of the flower were sprinkled with mud,
I saw green leaves upon the trees
And a flower surrounded entire-ly by bees.
That is what I saw on my way
As I was coming to school today.
—Mary Eleanor Horne, grade 6

An Old Log Cabin

I had never really taken notice of the old log cabin before. I had always been in a hurry coming or going from school or town. But this afternoon, I was walking very slowly down the hill and there it was. It was weatherbeaten and decayed. It was made completely out of logs, from the roof to the steps. It is a very lovely old place.

It is a true Carmel home.

—Barbara Bolton, grade 6

Spring

It was spring,
The weather was fair,
Elk were dancing
Here and there.

A wind was blowing.
The wind was high,
The great trees gave
A happy sigh.

The flowers were blooming
Red, yellow, and blue,
The birds were happy
And sang as they flew.

The day it was ending,
The birds went to sleep,
A young bird awakened
And gave a small peep.

Night began falling,
The shadow of a fawn
Was waiting in the darkness
For morning to dawn.

—Delora Sharpe, grade 6

Pan American Day

Little eggshell gardens will be the contribution to the Pan American Fair by Miss Billington's first grade. They will put dirt in these eggshells and plant pansies in them. When the pansies come up the children will put the eggshells in egg cartons and sell them at the Fair. The money that Sunset school makes will be donated to the P.T.A. welfare fund.

—Bob Burgess, grade 7

Little People Dancing

Miss McQuilkin's kindergarten will do folk dances on April 14, 1944. The children will be dressed in gay peasant costumes. The girls will wear long skirts and white blouses. The boys will wear blue trousers and white shirts.

—Louise Daniels, grade 7

Frijoles at the Fair

Spanish foods will also be available at the Pan American Fair at Sunset on Friday, April 14. Frijoles prepared Mexican style will be included.

All the money taken in at the Fair will be given to the P.T.A. welfare fund.

—Au-Deane Shepherd, grade 7

A New Girl

We have a new girl in our room. Her name is Eleanor Ruth Taggart and she is from Amarillo, Texas, but the last school she went to was Heaton School, Fresno. She has a small brother in the second grade. His name is Howard. She liked the school in Amadillo, Texas best but she likes this one almost as much.

Sleanor collects little china tea cups. Her favorite games are baseball and monopoly. She also likes to read books and she plays the piano quite well. She likes to go bicycle riding. She is a second class Girl Scout but hasn't had time to join up here yet.

—Joan Sanders, grade 6

Stars

I looked into the sky last night
And saw some pretty stars
And then I looked across again
And saw among them all
Venus, Mars, and Saturn too
Shining down out of the blue.

Garden Club Meets At Mrs. Cranston's

By FLORA HARTWELL

A happy surprise awaited the fifty members of the Garden Section of the Carmel Woman's Club who met last Friday afternoon at the charming home of Mrs. Helen Clark Cranston in Carmel Woods.

Mr. Andrew Prego, Jr. and Mr. James A. Darling of the Coca Cola Co., presented fascinating moving pictures of flower arrangements, most beautiful in color and design. They were accompanied by recordings which explained the materials used and the art principles involved, which gave many helpful suggestions for home decoration.

After this program the guests repaired to Mrs. Cranston's spacious garden which commands a glorious panoramic view of forests, mountains and the blue of Carmel Bay.

The day seemed made-to-order for this occasion. After weeks of rain, rain and more rain, Friday proved to be what all the old Carmelites acclaim as "a typical Carmel day!"—bright and sun-shiny with sea-air laden with the odor of pines. The guests reveled in the warmth and beauty as they wandered about the beds of pansies, roses, and other spring blossoms as well as the productive Victory garden.

P. T. A. Tea

The Carmel Parent Teachers Association held a general meeting and tea Thursday, March 16th, at Sunset school. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Robert Stanton, who spoke informally to the parents of the recent developments on the Recreation Room for the high school students. Mrs. B. F. Sowell, Jr., program chairman, then introduced Mr. J. W. Getsinger who told of the congested condition at Sunset school and outlined the proposed plan to move the seventh grade from Sunset to the high school. He spoke of the definite advantages of such a plan, the gymnasium, coach, cafeteria, and shop at the high school being available to the seventh graders, and the disadvantages, particularly the social problem, and how it is overcome in other schools in the state. The guest speaker, Mrs. George W. Stuart, was introduced and she spoke charmingly and with humor of her experiences with the natives of Mindanao. Her informal talk was largely devoted to the importance of family life on the Island, and the clever native psychology used by the mothers in training and disciplining the children. Mrs. Sylvia Jordan then told of the Pan American Fiesta to be given by the students under her direction on April 14th, Pan America Day, and showed samples of the clever articles being made by the children for the authentic Pan American market. Tea was served under the direction of Mrs. C. W. Laugenour, hospitality chairman, with Mrs. William Gargiulo and Mrs. James L. Handley pouring, assisted by Mrs. Lee Smith. The tea table was decorated with a beautiful centerpiece of mixed flowers in shades of blue, yellow and orchid, arranged by Mrs. Stanton.

Putnam, when it is launched next Sunday at the Bethlehem Steel yards. Attendants will be her two daughters, Doanda Putnam Wheeler and Jacqueline Putnam Wheeler. The vessel is named in honor of a distant relative of Mrs. Wheeler, Master Charles Flint Putnam, who graduated as a midshipman in 1873, receiving the rank of master in 1880, and met his death on an ice floe in the Arctic while commanding the U. S. S. Rodgers in a search for the exploration steamer, Jeanette. Among the guests at the ceremonies will be Mrs. Richmond K. Turner, Dr. and Mrs. Harvey Clark and Captain and Mrs. George P. ## Quintuplets for Edwina

Mrs. Royden Martin announced yesterday that Edwina, Siamese Cat extraordinary, has given birth to quintuplets, an unusual event under ordinary circumstances as felines generally reproduce in even numbers, but not an odd occurrence in this case, according to Mrs. Martin, as it is not remarkable that an odd cat should reproduce an odd number of progeny.

City Departments May Enter Kites in Kite Festival Saturday

Frank Hay, and the Red Cross, represented by Helen Heavey. The fire department is discussing the matter at its meeting as the Pine Cone goes to press.

It is not possible to make an accurate checkup on individuals contemplating entering, but Eayle Grigg and Malcolm Whitman Jr. are working on kites this week, and Billie Burke has made the announcement: "You can say I'm going to shut up my store Saturday afternoon and fly my kite." He had his hands behind the counter so this reporter couldn't see if his fingers were crossed.

As for the young people, about fifty boys and girls have built or are building kites, Calley reports. Some will crack up in trials before the festival, but on the whole there should be a good turn out.

The parade starts at Sunset school at 1:15 headed by Mayor P. A. McCreery and Chief of Police Roy Fratley, followed by the salvage truck resplendent with red paint and polished metal. Then come the city trucks loaded down with kids and their kites trailed by adults in their cars. Line of march will be the same as last year: down Ninth past the residence of the late Willis White, founder of the festival, to Camino Real, along Camino Real to Ocean, up Ocean to the high school.

Order of events at the festival will be the judging of the Best Made, Prettiest and Funniest, winners of which will then have to demonstrate that their kites are airworthy. While the judging of the above classes is going on the twenty-minute High Flying contest will be in progress. The two hundred foot contest will follow, and the big day will wind up with the new feature of the festival, the adult class.

Prizes announced by Ernest Calley are: Best Made: (kindergarten to third grade) coping saw, brooch and ticket for a milk shake. (4th to 5th grades) hammer, knife, milk shake, (6th to 7th) hack saw, pliers, knife. Prettiest: book, mallet, knife. Funniest: chisel, knife, two milk shakes. Highest Flying: hunting knife, screwdriver, knife, 200 ft. contest: hatchet, ratchet screwdriver, hone. High School: record, Eversharp pencil. Funniest: hand saw. Highest Flying: hunting knife, knife. 200 ft. contest: claiper rule.

Adult Group: two hand-made bowls of bay wood and a knife.

Art Group Talks Of Bringing in Outside Exhibits

A group of citizens intensely interested in the art future of Carmel assembled on Thursday evening at the Dolores street gallery for a hearing and preliminary discussion of a project suggested by Benny Bufano, newly appointed member of the San Francisco Art Commission.

The plan, as explained by Mr. Bufano, is to inject new blood into the current art stream of the Peninsula by bringing down to the gallery, under the San Francisco Art Commission's sponsorship, a series of outside exhibits, ranging from American primitives in the Congressional Library collection to the work of distinguished contemporaries. The plan includes also a fostering of the town's cultural life by the importation of the San Francisco Symphony as well as record programs accompanied by a lecturer.

While the opinions of those present seemed to concur on the point that Carmel, with its jealously guarded reputation for culture, was in danger of stagnating artistically under the present policy which tends to limit the public to a purely local diet, the most vocal expression of the meeting came from John O'Shea, who emphasized by his questions along practical lines the various material obstacles in the way of the proposed venture. The gallery, owned and operated at present by the artists themselves, and dependent for its support upon art association memberships, he pointed out, has no facilities for storage of valuable exhibits and is financially unable to carry the insurance which would be needed. Its present policy is against the charging of admission fees. The lack of manpower was explained as another defeating item. The handling and hanging of exhibits is at present a volunteer service of the artists themselves, too often failing completely upon the shoulders of hard-working president Myron Oliver.

The matter of importing the San Francisco Symphony, necessitating a stage larger than any at present available in Carmel, was felt to be completely out of the province of the art association.

Under the impact of Mr. O'Shea's doubts, the meeting closed without any positive action having been taken, although it was felt that a few seeds along the line of progressive thinking had been sown.

Meeting with Mr. Bufano on Thursday evening were Paul Mays, Johan Hagemeyer, John O'Shea, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Whitaker, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Ricketts, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Weston, Patricia Cunningham, Maxine Albro, Tony Lawrence, Jean Varda, Mr. and Mrs. Tal Lovejoy, Mrs. Marjorie Warren and Mrs. Elizabeth Cass.

Signup for P.T.A. Canning Program At Sunset School

The Carmel Parent Teachers Association will sponsor a canning program again this spring as it did last year with such success. The program consists of a series of lessons and demonstrations on open kettle and pressure cooker methods of canning fruits and vegetables and a lecture on freezing and dehydrating foods. Miss Ann Olson, Home Demonstration Agent for Monterey county, will be in charge of the program. There is a pressure cooker at Sunset school which has been made available through the P.T.A. for the use of anyone interested in canning.

All who are interested in attending this course and taking part in this most worth while project are asked to call the office at Sunset school and leave their names as definite plans cannot be made until it is determined that enough interest is shown to warrant going ahead with the program.

for this week's Carmel recitalist the record of having sung more opening night performances than any other of the Company's stars, save only the immortal Caruso.

Mr. Pinza's appearance here Sunday will be one of fifty-three recitals which the great basso is giving in leading cities across the country this season—the most extensive American concert tour which Pinza has yet undertaken. In addition to his solo concerts and his duties with the Metropolitan and San Francisco Opera Companies, Pinza will also be heard as soloist during the coming months with symphony orchestras in Cincinnati, Baltimore, Washington, Minneapolis, and Columbia, South Carolina.

Entertainment at the meeting was provided by Corporal Gordon Ayers. New member was Floyd Smith.

plete on the 4000-hp C-1 and the 8500-hp C-3 turbines, Jurs went back to Carmel.

But when Hendy was awarded a contract to build 6000-hp Victory turbines, and speed was essential in preparing the necessary tools, Williams wrote for Jurs.

Henry appeared the next day, ready to go to work, and plunged immediately into the task before him with customary efficiency. The task was almost completed when the Maritime Commission suddenly canceled its Victory program, and Jurs stayed on to iron out a few "bugs" that had developed in the C-3. But that job, too, is about finished, and Henry plans to go home for good in March.

Before the War with Spain broke out in 1898, Jurs was working in the Union Iron Works, San Francisco, and helped to fit out the first four American torpedo destroyers. Also, he equipped the Japanese cruiser "Chitose" with all its engine room gauges—"so the Japs could duplicate them," he says wryly.

Then he went to the Philippines with the army, when war had broken, and was given the job of rebuilding, armoring, and putting guns on a flat-bottomed craft built 40 years before, to make a river gunboat of her—and he became her chief engineer. Later, as a member of the Signal Corps, he was one of the very first men to enter Manila, conducting himself with gallantry which brought from Rome. Every man looks forward to the day when we kick the Krauts from that city and on over the mountains in the rear. I can't tell you about any of the actual fighting that takes place here but I can say that it has been mighty severe. Kraut artillery fire is pretty rough, but I'd prefer it to what they get in return.

Do you remember seeing in the movies and papers pictures of old bald headed Mussolini pitching hay with the farmers? Those pictures were taken right here where he built all the canals and farm homes for the people. Now there is scarcely a house standing and his wonderful canal system is smashed in all shapes and directions.

The souvenir I sent you was a piece of lava from Mt. Vesuvius.

I have also been on the Island of Capri.

It's getting kind of rough here again so I had better sign this and get on the job.

Anzio Beach Head
March 7-10

It looks like a nice day is coming. The sun is up bright now. It has been miserable and rainy for the past three days. The way the shells and bullets fly around here, it's a wonder I ever get any letters written. I started to write a couple of times this morning but had my mind changed by more important business.

The pin you are wearing in the picture you sent me—is that the one I sent you? I got a kick out of listening to my men talking the other night. One said, "You know since our Sarg got a picture from his wife, he wakes up in the morning with a smile instead of a growl." They are good men, though.

We are having some more tough old beef steak for supper. Another one of these cows over here got careless and walked into a shell. A couple of my men are busy cutting up some of it. First they cut a while, then sharpen their knives and curse. They listen for shells and duck into other holes now and then. I don't blame them for that.

Some of them come pretty close. A couple of days ago we set fire to a can of gasoline to cook over and a shell hit the can.

I am looking forward to a couple of letters tonight.

Flying Mollisons Playhouse Film

The week's bill at the Playhouse includes two pictures of equal merit but of contrasting moods. The first, opening tonight and playing through Sunday, with a matinee tomorrow, is a British-made film depicting the thrilling and dramatic life of the "Flying Mollisons," with Anna Neagle cast as Amy Johnson, England's dauntless pioneer aviatrix. In 1942, as the wife of Captain "Jim" Mollison, of early globe-circling fame, she met her death while on a ferry-pilot assignment during the Battle of Britain. In the film, back of the exciting personal story of the Mollisons, lies the whole inspiring drama of women's part in aviation. Playing opposite the lovely Anna Neagle, already well known to American film goers, is Robert Newton, best known here for a superb portrayal in "Major Barbara."

Next week's picture, starting Tuesday, is one of the best of the Ginger Rogers comedies, "The Major and the Minor," Ray Milland being teamed with the ever-popular Ginger. The film will play three nights, without matinee.

Mrs. Horne in Hospital, May Not Appear For Hearing

(Continued from page 1) the turn, he said. He parked and watched her while she picked up her three daughters at Sunset school. Followed her again until she turned into the Standard service station at San Carlos and Ocean. He then went to the police phone and called the girl in attendance at the service station, K. M. Lechowica, asking if the lady who drove in the service station with the tan Ford acted as though she were drunk. The service station girl attendant said, "She is either screwy or drunk." As he followed the tan Ford up the hill, he noticed that it was "going from the right hand curb and over to the center of the pavement and back again."

At the top of the hill, he says, he pulled in behind the tan Ford, put on his light and sounded his siren. He is substantiated in this by testimony of a housewife who lives in the neighborhood who stated she heard the siren. Mrs. Horne in her letter to the council made no mention of the siren but said that she stopped and asked Jelich why he was following her.

Jelich's report continues describing the conversation between them in which he said Mrs. Horne was belligerent, accused him of being an Italian, threatened to run over him while he was making out her ticket, and refused to sign the citation. He states that he told her the reason for the citation, failure to make an arm signal, but in her letter to the city council she said he charged her with "driving all over the road."

On her refusal to sign the citation, Jelich told her he was going to take her to the station: "I then took the keys out of the ignition, and put them in my pocket. As I was going to get her by the arm to get her out of the car, she started kicking at me and swinging her arms. I finally got hold of her left wrist and grabbed her under the arm at the armpit. All three of the little girls were begging her to sign. She still refused. As I had a hold of her left arm, she got her right arm hooked in under the spoke of the steering wheel and grabbed a hold of the wheel with her hand. So I reached across her back and hold of her right arm and she buried her face against the steering wheel, and at the same time I had a hold of her left arm. I finally got her out of the car and walked her over to my car. As I got her to my car and opened the door, several Army officers stopped, and she yelled 'Help, he won't let me sign the citation.' This was the first time she said that she would sign the citation."

Mrs. Horne in her letter stated that she had offered to sign the citation before he got her out of her car but that the "officer continued to maul me about and said, 'No, by God, you won't. I'm going to take you to jail.'"

According to Jelich, the Army officers advised her to go quietly and he took her down to the office where she started in a wrong door and he took her by the arms and led her in the right direction.

In this he is substantiated by witnesses. As to the altercation at the top of the hill, witnesses disagree as to whether his handling of Mrs. Horne was unduly violent.

The argument continued in the police station where Chief of Police Roy Frates became involved. In his report he says she was highly excited, made a break for the telephone. "I took her by both arms and walked her backward to the chair. I held my hands on her arms at all times and kept them there until she was seated in the chair. With her resistance and belligerent manner, she did sit down harder than would be normally necessary. She was up from the chair immediately and I did not proceed any further along these lines."

In answering his questions for booking, Frates quotes her as

MAYOR PICKS HIS CANDIDATES

It gives me extreme satisfaction that such men as Bernard Rowntree, Frank Heffling and Allen Knight have filed their papers to serve as Councilman for the City of Carmel.

Bernard Rowntree, with whom I have worked for the last 4 years and whom I have known for the past 10 years, is without question the most sincere and true Carmelite the citizens can possibly secure as their representative.

It has not been my pleasure to work with Allen Knight and Frank Heffling in any capacity but I do know both of these men personally and have found them to be of the true Carmel spirit. Both of them definitely have the background of our Community and I believe they will do much to preserve the serenity and charm that is appreciated by all who live here and by those who visit us.

I do not hesitate to ask your consideration for these three men as your city representatives. P. A. McCreery, Mayor saying that her occupation is housewife and writer. "Oh Boy, what a story this will make," she said, according to Frates. And she asked him why he didn't write it up and give it to the papers.

Judge Ross was summoned and released her on her own recognizance.

In his report Judge Ross stated that when he arrived the citation was not signed, but she signed it before him. That he advised her not to tell her story to him as he was not holding court.

Frates then took her to her car and offered to take her home if she were unable to drive, but she said she was all right.

During the altercation in the police office, she threatened to slap Jelich's face, Jelich says, and is substantiated by a witness who was in the hallway of the city hall at the time and overheard that part of the conversation.

The city council made no comment on the report at the Friday meeting other than that there was conflict in the testimony of witnesses and that they would like time to study the reports. The mayor ordered copies made for each member of the council, the district attorney and for the press. Councilman Fred Godwin expressed the hope that if there were any witnesses who had not been heard from, they come forward with their testimony.

Gail Chandler Selling Business To Derek Rayne

Gail Chandler, for ten years proprietor of a men's clothing store on Ocean Avenue, has sold his business to Derek Rayne, the transfer to take place April 1, Chandler said yesterday.

Chandler's reason for the sale was that he wanted to get out in the open away from confining work. His plans are indefinite; he may go away for a vacation, he says, but he will continue to make Carmel his home. He has been a resident of the Monterey Peninsula for forty years.

Rayne, who has been employed in the Chandler store for four months, has his home in Carmel Valley where he and Mrs. Rayne are interested in breeding prize-winning dogs. He was engaged in the shoe industry in New York and before that was associated with the old established shoe company of his family in England. He has lived for four years on the Peninsula and for a time was employed in the editorial department of the Pine Cone when this paper was under the ownership of Carlos Drake.

Community Concert Association Drive Closes On Sunday

Signup for membership in the Monterey Peninsula Community Concert Association is progressing so satisfactorily that the officers believe that a fourth concert, in addition to the three guaranteed, is assured, according to reports received from drive workers at a dinner at the Casa Munras in Monterey Wednesday night.

The association is organized on a membership basis which is closed at the end of the drive on Sunday, March 25. No single admissions are sold at any concert and the number of concerts depends on the number of members joining the organization. It is affiliated with 350 other concert associations and membership entitles one to attend concerts in other cities, including Salinas, at no extra cost.

Membership cards can be purchased at Staniford's Drug Store.
